

All Possible Income From Cotton Needed This Year

By J. B. WILSON
Extension Agricultural Engineer

WOULDN'T it be fine if every one of Alabama's estimated 796,000 bales of 1940 cotton brought every possible penny to farmers this year? A great many farmers are not burdened with an excess income and the money they receive from this year's cotton will certainly find a place where it is needed.

Last year 372,000 bales or nearly half of the State's crop did not bring the maximum returns because the cotton went to the gin in a damp or wet condition. And experiments have proven that wet picked cotton will lose in value from two to five dollars a bale.

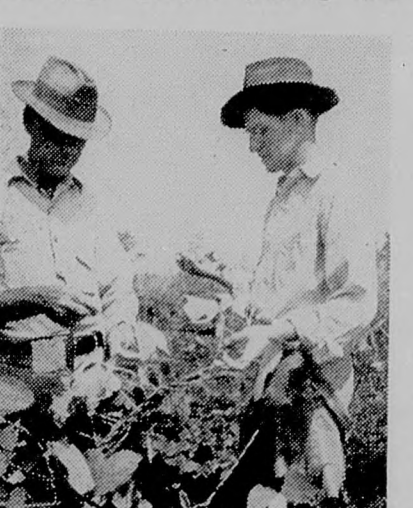

Cotton picking time is upon us a time when farmers and ginners need to begin a cooperative program to get the best lint possible from the seed cotton. Of cotton producers I would urge:

1. Take care to obtain clean dry cotton.
2. If you pick cotton in the early morning place it on a tarpaulin and spread it out to dry before going to the gin or before packing in a shed.
3. Allow cotton picked after a rain to dry thoroughly.
4. Do everything possible to carry a "quality load" of cotton to the gin.

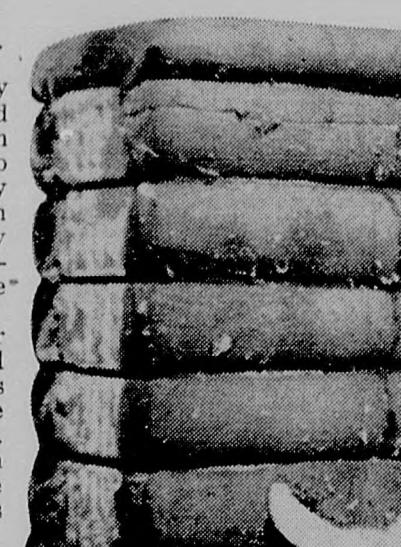

To the ginners I would say:

1. You have a responsibility to the farmer to give him a good processed product.
2. Alabama had around 66 gins equipped with driers last year. Was yours one of these?
3. Clean heater screens and inspect each incoming load of cotton so that drier can be adjusted.

We in the Extension Service would like to warn that even cotton that has been linted and cannot produce a good sample from extremely wet cotton. We encourage proper picking and Barley looks good as crop.

Barley has yielded sufficiently well on the better heavy lands of Alabama to justify a more general trial in the State.

Farmers should not expect too much from this crop but plant it strictly on a trial basis. Good yields have been obtained on good lands in the spring of 1940.

Here are points to remember:

1. Plant on good land.
2. Plant a reasonably large patch since birds damage it severely.
3. Use Marnobarb variety developed by the Maryland Experiment Station, which is giving excellent results.
4. Plant September first to October 15.
5. Drill or broadcast six pecks of seed per acre on firm well prepared seed bed. Cover about two inches.
6. Fertilizer—If previous crop was not fertilized at rate of 500-600 pounds per acre, apply 400 pounds of superphosphate and 50 pounds of muriate of potash at planting and top dress with 24 to 36 pounds of nitrogen about March 1.

A year ago home demonstration club women in every county of Alabama decided to see what they could do to help use more cotton. From that decision came 18,427 all cotton dresses made by as many women to be entered in community and county contests. Dresses made by and modeled by the three women above placed first in the final State contest held in connection with Farm and Home week at Auburn in August. They are Mrs. P. M. Youth Accepts the Challenge

By T. W. LUMPKIN

THESE are action days and action always calls for thinking—deep, steady, common-sense thinking. Youth is the center of attraction, both in thinking and action. No one doubts the necessity of properly trained youth, yet few give youth credit for the ability to think soundly. Youth guided properly and given free opportunity to think and reason will develop initiative, responsibility. Yes, they will develop a habit of action that will not soon depart from loyal, patriotic, common sense.

In this time of chaos and turmoil, the challenge goes out to rural youth to meet the dread disease of decay from within, and the horrible plague of the sure economic depression. We accept this challenge, not with a wild misconception of solving the problems because we are Americans, but we accept with a sober mind, with a full recognition of the many mistakes we will make. We accept the challenge with the confident thought we are still free to think, to think soundly, and by so thinking act wisely, and by so acting build gradually, and by so building accomplish usefully, and by so accomplishing succeed genuinely.

What can we do as rural youth? We can think and reason with our heads, we can pledge loyalty with our hearts, we can be useful with our hands, and we can be healthful with our bodies. These things we learn in our 4-H Club work. In addition, we can learn to work and play together, to gain confidence in our associates, to learn to do by doing.

We can make wise use of our lands which includes proper protection from soil erosion and proper use for row crops and livestock. We can beautify our rural homes, and make a good house a lovely home. We can develop leadership on a club, community, county, state, and national basis. We can develop happiness and appreciation of nature by realizing the many opportunities around us. Yes, we can accept the challenge of rural youth for the future, and thank God each day we live in a land where there is "Liberty and Justice for all."

Extension Service is endeavoring to carry still further the message of better farming and homemaking in Alabama. But it is getting the State's own good farmers and homemakers to help tell the story.

Mr. Charlie Helms, who lives between New Brockton and Enterprise, was in Elba a few days ago and stopped by The Clipper office to tell us his snake story. On Monday afternoon, September 2, he killed a large rattlesnake right in his yard near the door.

The snake was 53 inches in length and had five rattles. Mr. Helms stated that he did not know how the snake got into his yard. He was happy that he found and killed him before any harm was done.

MR. SPURLIN WRITES

September 9, 1940.

Dear Editor and Readers:

After so long an absence for a short chat. Have thought for several weeks I would write but I often change places on Sunday and at each new place we naturally want to talk over new things we know or think, so the writing is neglected.

Was with Mr. W. E. (Bill) Parrish and children, also a number of relatives and friends yesterday in a birthday celebration three miles north of Winston. It seemed like all enjoyed it. The spread at noon was grand and plenty for two such crowds. One son lives in Panama and a daughter in Crestview, Fla. They furnished fish. They were fine, as well as the other relatives.

Mr. Parrish is 74 years old. He and his wife went home with the daughter at Crestview for a visit. Two weeks ago yesterday I was with Theodore Pierce celebrating his birthday with a barbecue. It was grand. I enjoy these celebrations. They bring people together that perhaps would not see each other in a long time if ever, were it not for these celebrations.

Am with Brother George. It is surprising time and I nearly always spend a few weeks with them at this time, for I enjoy the seclusion and peace. And his wife is the best to pick them for me I ever saw. The drought is making them badly-drying them up green.

Mr. Dock Wile was buried yesterday. He had suffered a long time with rheumatism. Don't know what caused his death.

Frederic Mitchell was carried to the hospital again Saturday. He has been ill for quite a while. Sister Fanny's health is still bad. There are but few things she can eat without hurting her.

My health is not too good. Wish everybody well.

FARMERS ADVISED PLANT WHITE CLOVER PATCHES

AUBURN, Ala.—White Dutch Clover, one of the most valuable pasture plants in Alabama, now has a future on almost every Alabama farm if farmers get to work right away and plant small seed patches.

This is reported by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, in advising that experiment stations and demonstrators have found that Alabama farmers can easily produce white clover seed.

It is vital, he said, that farmers raise their own seed because European clover seed, upon which the U. S. has been largely dependent, is now cut off from this country.

Seeds for white clover seed production should be carefully prepared and liberally fertilized with phosphate. Plantings should be made between September 1 and October 15.

This spring Alabama farmers saved 50,000 pounds of white Dutch clover seed.

ALABAMA FARMERS ADVISED TO UTILIZE KUDZU FIELDS

AUBURN, Ala.—Alabama farmers are advised by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, to utilize their kudzu for temporary grazing or hay production, also to watch for vine for seed.

"On many farms are small areas of kudzu which are not being utilized for livestock," he says, "in advising farmers to utilize their kudzu fields."

Mr. Lowery reports that kudzu is blooming in several counties and may produce seed this year. "Kudzu is not a certain feeder but farmers should watch old vines for seed and harvest the seed for home use," he says.

OATS MAKE EXCELLENT FEED FOR DAIRY COWS

AUBURN, Ala.—F. W. Burns, extension dairyman, is urging Alabama farmers to plant at least one acre of oats per cow to furnish early spring grazing and for grain production.

"We find that 15 bushels of corn from an acre will furnish 677 pounds of total digestible nutrients compared with 688 pounds from an acre yielding 39 bushels of oats, a slight advantage for oats over corn," he says. "When cut in the dough stage for hay, oats compare favorably with legume hay."

The first-rot course for Alabama freeze-locker plant operations in Auburn, August 27 and 28, was an outstanding success with operators discussing freely their problems.

SHARON SINGING

On August 25th, the Sacred Harp singers, lovers of the old songs and friends met at Sharon Church for the annual homecoming. The class was called together by the former chairman, Mr. D. F. Wilks, singing a few songs.

Class organized as follows: D. F. Wilks, chairman; J. R. Clark, vice-chairman; R. H. Moore, secretary.

Introductory lesson by L. R. Hickman. Morning session by the following leaders: Three songs each: A. M. Smith, I. A. Wilks, J. H. Jackson, D. S. Hundley, U. B. Hudson, J. C. Purn, T. P. Sanders. Recess 5 minutes. Class called to order by chairman. Lesson by the following: A. C. Sanders, J. C. Tiler, R. H. Moore, W. C. Clark, Noah Helms, Mrs. Edna Sanders, Miss Rose Lee Clark, Mrs. Pearl Clark. A splendid talk by Mr. J. E. Pittman. Mr. Pittman says he is not a leader of singing, but a great consumer.

One hour for dinner. On the table under the old oaks in the shade and a lot of good eats were there for all. Told tales and some left. The class was called together by Mr. J. E. Pittman. Mr. Pittman says he is not a leader of singing, but a great consumer.

Lesson by the following leaders: R. D. Beck, J. A. Thomas, G. R. Henderson, Okey Head, A. T. Clark, E. A. Wilks, W. F. Sanders, Jack Williamson, E. A. Chapman, H. W. Deane. Recess 5 minutes. Lesson by the following leaders: W. M. Wilkerson, J. H. Harrison, Ed Kelley, G. H. Ammons, W. M. Matthews, W. C. Barr.

Business session: Delegates to convention in 1941, at Fairview on the first Sunday in August and Saturday before, J. H. Jackson and J. S. J. Sanders. Minute money $1.35. Dismissed by chairman until the fourth Sunday in August, 1941.

We are almost through picking cotton for we won't get much more than one-half bale to the plow this way. FARMERS URGED NOT TO OVER-CUT TIMBER

AUBURN, Ala.—Increased demand for lumber and higher stumpage prices are causing many Alabama farmers to make the mistake of cutting their forest areas clean.

It is highly advisable for farmers with equipment and labor to harvest and market their timber on a selective basis, advises Paul G. Milnaps, assistant extension forester.

The following practices are recommended for farmers who own equipment and labor: First, with a white hand of paint, mark all defective, diseased, insect infested or crowded trees to be cut. Scale each one and tally. Second, specify the amount to be sold and request scaled bids from several buyers.

Third, draw up a timber sale contract covering the rate of payment, protection to the remaining stand, method the timber will be scaled, and just what will and will not be cut.

Contract forms may be secured either from the local county agent or from the Extension Forester's office in Auburn.

Mrs. Joe Morgan, Jr., and daughter, Mary Jo, Mrs. T. E. Farmer and little daughter, Vivian J. J. Morgan, Extension Forester, at the home of Mrs. Morgan.

Mrs. Lucile Hatfield, Miss Miriam Shepherd and Mr. Tom Shepherd of Montgomery were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Prescott.

Mrs. R. O. Seay of Enterprise spent Tuesday in Elba, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brooks.

Attention Mr. Farmer

Money takes time to come in. I need to use Power Balers. Will swap pickers for balers or pay cash. See me before you see anyone else.

SCA SEARCHING FOR NEW EROSION CONTROL PLANTS

AUBURN, Ala.—Over 80 million plants are now growing on more than 500 acres of nursery land in the Southeastern States.

The greatest number of these plants is kudzu. Second largest number is live oak. Third, red gum. A total of 39 different erosion control plants are in quantity production.

Besides that, more than 600 varieties of plants with erosion-control possibilities are being tried. Of these about 300 have been collected in the Southeastern States.

The others were sent to other sections of the country to be tried under Southeastern conditions.

Observational nurseries are located at Thorsby, Ala., and Chapin, N. C.

When a promising plant is discovered, seed are sent to these nurseries. There are small plantings made for observation. If the seed come up and the plant thrives, it is sent to other nurseries in other sections of the United States for observation under different conditions.

After the plant shows promise as a soil-conserving plant, workers all over the Southeast are supplied with seed for actual field trials.

Thirteen new plants, valuable for erosion control, have been discovered in this way. These include four clovers or legumes, five shrubs, two grasses one wild bean, and a wild pea.

Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Ringdorf and two small sons visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Frazier, in LaFayette during the week-end.

Mrs. Ethel Buebe and Miss Rebecca Buebe of Opp visited in Elba during the week-end, guests of Miss Hazel Buebe.

Mrs. Roberta Childs and Jimmy Childs, who spent the summer in Ontario, returned to Elba last week for the school term.

Mrs. Ada Shealy and Miss Sara Shealy have gone to Fort Deposit, where Miss Shealy will teach this year.

Mrs. W. H. Coston is spending a few days in Brewton, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Till.

SCA SEARCHING FOR NEW EROSION CONTROL PLANTS

AUBURN, Ala.—Over 80 million plants are now growing on more than 500 acres of nursery land in the Southeastern States.

The greatest number of these plants is kudzu. Second largest number is live oak. Third, red gum. A total of 39 different erosion control plants are in quantity production.

Besides that, more than 600 varieties of plants with erosion-control possibilities are being tried. Of these about 300 have been collected in the Southeastern States.

The others were sent to other sections of the country to be tried under Southeastern conditions.

Observational nurseries are located at Thorsby, Ala., and Chapin, N. C.

When a promising plant is discovered, seed are sent to these nurseries. There are small plantings made for observation. If the seed come up and the plant thrives, it is sent to other nurseries in other sections of the United States for observation under different conditions.

After the plant shows promise as a soil-conserving plant, workers all over the Southeast are supplied with seed for actual field trials.

Thirteen new plants, valuable for erosion control, have been discovered in this way. These include four clovers or legumes, five shrubs, two grasses one wild bean, and a wild pea.</
